LEARN ABOUT:

- Discover key trends impacting sustainable packaging
- The changing regulatory landscape for packaging
- Cost savings through sustainable package innovation
- Gain insight into industry opinions on the usage and future of sustainable packaging
- Learn how to choose the appropriate suppliers and distributors which allow for materials to be recaptured
- Through sustainable packaging increase your organization's market share by capturing the "green consumer"
- Transition towards using renewable packaging materials to reduce consumption of energy and water, and minimize packaging waste
- Rethink the package development process by touching upon all e the 4 R's: Realize, Reuse, Recapture, and Reduce
- Case studies of successful green manufacturing techniques
- Understand what metrics and tools are available to assess the environmental impact of your packaging
- Asses the latest trends in packaging technologies to ensure your organization delivers more sustainable packaging solutions
- Optimize materials and energy within the design process

SUSTAINABLE PACKAGING SUMMIT

March 10-12, 2010 • Chicago, IL

PRE-CONFERENCE WORKSHOP: March 10th, 2010

2:00-4:00 PM

1st PRE-CONFERENCE WORKSHOP: ENHANCING YOUR BRAND'S IMAGE THROUGH SUSTAINABILITY

Amcor will provide examples of containers that it has helped design and bring to the market and which are leaders in the sustainability movement. This workshop will teach you how to educate your customers to better harness and recover material from the landfills. Finally, this workshop will talk about integrating recyclability into your organization's operations.

About the workshop leader:

David Clark is Director of Sustainability for Amcor PET Packaging. Dave joined Amcor in 2004 as plant manager of Amcor's PET recycling plant in Novi, Michigan

David Clark, Director of Sustainability, AMCOR PET PACKAGING

4:00-4:15 PM

BREAK

4:15-6:00 PM

PRE-CONFERENCE INTERACTIVE WORKSHOP: UNDERSTANDING SUSTAINABLE PACKAGING

The workshop will give an overview of key sustainability concepts and drivers, and how they affect packaging. It will then provide in-depth information on regulations and business trends affecting packaging design. Participants will learn about strategies for evaluating different package designs and how they will be evaluated in scoring systems such as those being implemented by Walmart and other major retailers. They will learn how complying with these requirements may reveal cost reduction opportunities. The workshop will also cover strategies for communicating environmental packaging and product attributes to today's environmentally-conscious consumer in ways that add credibility to your brand.

ATTENDEES WILL LEARN ABOUT:

- Tools & resources for assessing sustainability
- Environmental marketing & labeling of packaging
- Walmart, Tesco and other retailer's scorecard. How can you improve your scores
- Sustainability through the supply chain

About the workshop leader:

Victor Bell is President of Environmental Packaging International (EPI), a consultancy specializing in global environmental packaging and product stewardship requirements. Mr. Bell, who founded EPI in 1998, is a Certified Packaging Professional with more than 20 years of experience with environmental issues associated with packaging and products. EPI has provided assistance to major companies worldwide in the electronics, toy, soft drink, cosmetics, medical, and general merchandise industries.

KEYNOTE- USING SUSTAINABLE PACKAGING INNOVATION TO DRIVE SALES AND PRODUCTIVITY IN WAL-MART STORES

Sustainable Packaging Innovation involving Retail Ready Packaging (RRP) has changed the way retailers look at replenishing shelves in order to be in-stock for our customers. The other consequential metric of RRP is it increases productivity in the stores which can be used to deliver excellent customer service.

ATTENDEES WILL LEARN ABOUT:

- RRP basics
- Sustainable RRP's
- RRP Conversion of a category
- RRP Highlights from abroad

Sean M. Stephan, Sr. Director of Sustainable Packaging, WAL-MART INTERNATIONAL

Sean M. Stephan is the Senior Director of Sustainable Packaging for Wal-Mart International where he oversees the sustainable packaging requirements for all 13 countries in which Wal-Mart does business. He has a Masters of Science Degree in Bio-Chemical Engineering and is a certified Lean Sigma Master Black Belt.

SORTING OUT OPTIONS FOR SUSTAINABLE PACKAGING- WHICH MATERIALS ARE BEST?

Companies today are presented with a myriad of options to make their packaging more sustainable. There's paper, glass, metal, traditional plastics, and the emerging selection of renewably-sourced or compostable materials. So which alternative should your organization consider? The reality is that there is no silver bullet, but there are lots of directions in which your organization can go to achieve more sustainable packaging.

ATTENDEES WILL LEARN ABOUT:

- The evolution of packaging innovation towards more sustainable options,
- Sorting out the essential "R"'s (reduce, reuse, recycle, renewable)
- Facts, pros, and cons of available materials, and planning for future scenario's

Susan Homan, Marketing Manager for Sustainable Materials, DUPONT

SUSTAINABLE PACKAGING SUMMIT

March 10-12, 2010 • Chicago, IL

10:30 - 11:15 AM PACKAGING SUSTAINABILITY – THE FUTURE

HP's perspective on sustainable packaging, examples of changes made, examples of changes investigated, measuring performance and establishing goals. What does the future hold for the packaging industry?

WHAT ATTENDEES WILL LEARN:

- Identify where your organization is in its journey to sustainability
- Decide what your organization's driver is
- Establish benchmarks
- Create goals

Randall Boeller, Packaging Engineering Program Manager, HEWLETT-PACKARD

11:15 - 12:00 PM PACKAGING SUSTAINABILITY AT BURT'S BEES

This presentation will cover Burt's Bees Packaging Standard. I also cover the company's goals and other sustainability program. I show examples of sustainable packages and sustainable packaging "wins".

ATTENDEES WILL LEARN ABOUT:

- Burt's Bees Packaging Standard
- Sustainable Packaging Examples
- Action plan for developing sustainable packaging

Robert Combs, Sr. Packaging Design Engineer, BURT'S BEES

12:00 - 1:00 PM LUNCHEON & EXHIBITS & SPONSORS

1:00 - 1:45 PM SUSTAINABILITY GAINS IN PET PACKAGING, A SYSTEMS APPROACH

PET packaging has made gains in the area of sustainability, but consumers don't always understand the benefits of packaging. The largest gains in sustainable products and packaging can be achieved when brand owners, converters, and others in the value chain work together using a systems approach. This presentation will highlight some recent packaging advances, as well as opportunities to further improve product and packaging sustainability.

ATTENDEES WILL LEARN ABOUT:

- Evaluate packaging as a key element in overall product sustainability.
- Match your company targets and desired outcomes with the appropriate sustainability initiatives.
- Achieve alignment with packaging suppliers to achieve sustainability improvements.

David Clark, Director of Sustainability, AMCOR PET PACKAGING

1:45 - 2:00 PM AFTERNOON REFRESHMENTS & EXHIBITS

2:00 - 2:45 PM UNDERSTANDING RETAILER SCORECARD (WALMART-TESCO)

This presentation will discuss strategies for evaluating different package designs and how they are evaluated in scoring systems such as those being implemented by Walmart and other major retailers.

ATTENDEES WILL LEARN ABOUT:

- Walmart, Tesco and other retailer's scorecard.
- How can you improve your organization's scores

Victor Bell, President, ENVIRONMENTAL PACKAGING INTERNATIONAL

2:45 - 3:30 PM PLASTIC PACKAGING SUSTAINABILITY CASE STUDIES

Plastic packaging can be used to reduce, greenhouse gas emissions, material use, energy use and waste. Through case studies we will compare plastic packages to alternatives using life-cycle assessment and Wal-Mart scorecard metrics.

ATTENDEES WILL LEARN ABOUT:

- Use plastics lightweight to reduce environmental impacts such as greenhouse gas emissions, energy use and waste.

Keith Christman, Senior Director, Packaging, AMERICAN CHEMISTRY COUNCIL, PLASTICS DIVISION

3:30 - 4:15 PM PACKAGING & THE ENVIRONMENT-THE CONSUMER VIEW

Environmental concerns are in the news and receiving a good deal of attention. Marketers need to determine the best approach to increasing government mandates, retailer guidelines and consumer preferences. Perception Research Services, the leading packaging research company for over 30 years, has been at the forefront of assessing consumers' attitudes, behaviors and perceptions regarding this complex and critical topic.

ATTENDEES WILL LEARN ABOUT:

- Communicate with consumers
- Provide meaningful options
- Manage expectations

PACKAGING WITH PUNCH: INTEGRATING SUSTAINABILITY INTO THE PACKAGE DESIGN

The shelves in any major store are a battleground to capture a consumer's attention. On the shelves today your packaging must represent a consistent message to the consumer. Design, color, and choice of packaging material have always been key factors, but increasingly important has been an extension of sustainability into a broader packaging and marketing strategy for each product. Besides having an innovative package design to differentiate your product, it should also send the message to the consumer that this product in some form is sustainable.

ATTENDEES WILL LEARN ABOUT:

- Incorporate sustainability in the design process
- Understand relationship management in terms of a tool to ensure more collaboration among internal departments throughout the packaging process
- Differentiate your product to gain market share
- Eliminate PVC, polyvinyl chloride from your company's packaging

Michael Maggio, Vice President, Global Strategic Design Operations, JOHNSON & JOHNSON

MORNING REFRESHMENTS & EXHIBITS/SPONSORS

10:00 - 11:00 AM

PACKAGING AUTOMATION: CENTERPIECE FOR SUSTAINABLE CPG BUSINESS STRATEGY

Brand owners regularly underutilize their packaging operations as a strategic business asset. Yet, packaging operations are critical to both sustainability and CPG marketing strategies. Many opportunities to increase packaging efficiency are already proven in manufacturing, so implementation cost and risk are minimal.

ATTENDEES WILL LEARN ABOUT:

- Distinguish between 'machine builders' and new breed of packaging systems providers with turnkey responsibility for complete solutions
- Reconcile capital expenditure policies with operational savings and sustainability gains
- Increase supply chain effectiveness by partnering material suppliers with packaging engineering and machinery suppliers
- Reduce time to market by developing packaging lines in parallel with package design
- Ask the right questions about packaging machinery as a non-technical manager to reduce investment risk through innovation, reliability, efficiency and flexibility

John Kowal, Global Marketing Manager, SCHNEIDER ELECTRIC, ELAU PACKAGING SOLUTIONS

11:00 - 12:00 PM

K-C SUSTAINABLE PACKAGING SUCCESSES

This presentation will review ongoing work within K-C to develop more sustainable packaging alternatives.

ATTENDEES WILL LEARN ABOUT:

- Reduced packaging
- New packaging materials
- What our customers and consumers are telling us

Ken Strassner, Vice President, Global Environment, Safety, Regulatory, and Scientific Affairs, KIMBERLY-CLARK

12:00 - 1:00 PM

LUNCHEON & EXHIBITS

1:00 - 1:45 PM

USING CONSUMER INSIGHTS TO DRIVE PACKAGING INNOVATION

NMI research shows that 80% of all consumers exhibit some interest in sustainability and other "green" initiatives. This session will explore how consumer insights regarding sustainability and eco-friendly packaging can be integrated into the innovation process for new packaging development. Insight will also be provided into how to communicate green marketing/package claims that are meaningful, memorable and relevant to consumers.

WHAT ATTENDEES WILL LEARN:

- Integrate consumer insight into the innovation process
- Target those consumers who are most likely to respond to eco-friendly packaging claims
- Leverage consumer awareness, and interest in, packaging seals and certifications

Diane Ray, Vice President, Strategic Innovation, NATURAL MARKETING INSTITUTE
